INDEX TO H. G. JONES'S ASSOCIATED PRESS COLUMNS, 1969-1986

"In the Light of History," 29 October 1969-21 March 1979
(C905/I35)

"In Light of History," 28 March 1979-15 October 1986
(C905/I35.1)

The weekly column, "In the Light of History" (the title was changed slightly in 1979 to drop "the"), originated in March 1963 when Tim Parker of the Associated Press requested Dr. Christopher Crittenden, then director of the State Department of Archives and History, to furnish a weekly article on North Carolina history for distribution to afternoon newspapers subscribing to the wire service.

Upon Dr. Crittenden's death in October 1969, the AP requested his successor, Dr. H. G. Jones, to continue the column. During the following 17 years Dr. Jones never missed a Wednesday deadline. At an average of six hours of research and writing for each story, the 884 columns from 1969 to 1986 consumed an estimated 5,304 hours--the equivalent of 663 eight-hour work days or 132 forty-hour weeks. At 600 words each, the stories contain over 530,000 words totaling, in print, about 17,680 column inches--the equivalent of 134 newspaper pages without advertisements.

"In the Light of History" (and "In Light of History") was researched, written, typed on a bulletin typewriter, and furnished to the Associated Press free and without even reimbursement for postage. The sole compensation consisted of the satisfaction of providing a public service to North Carolinians interested in their history.

Many but not all of the stories appear in the North Carolina Collection Clipping File under the appropriate subject. This index, however, is to the complete xerox copies of the original typed stories, bound in 16 volumes in the North Carolina Collection under classification of C905/I35 for those dating from 29 October 1969 through 21 March 1979 and C905/I35.1 for those dating from 28 March 1979 through 15 October 1986. When a patron furnishes the call number and date, the reference staff will bring the appropriate volume. The date of release is used for indexing purposes.
